A449 And A307 Round Head Bolts

Round head bolts are similar to carriage bolts except they do not have the square neck found on carriage bolts. These fasteners are used to secure wood and other connections in industrial applications such as guardrails. Round head bolts meant to be used in wood structures are manufactured in accordance with ASTM standards.

Round Head Bolts To Meet With A Range Of Requirements

We carry round head bolts in a comprehensive range of lengths, diameters, and thread configurations. These fasteners are also hot dipped galvanized (HDG) for added resistance in exposed applications. We maintain an ample stock of these bolts, including A449 and A307, stainless steel and domestic round head bolts, to ensure that we can complete orders quickly.

Our inventory includes a range of many other essential construction fasteners, from structural bolts and hex bolts to tension control bolts.
